Equal to Mark Twain.

Newspaper writers will thoroughly appreciate the following eulogistic tale, which we take from the Philadelphia Dispatch:

A week or two ago one of our reporters had occasion to refer to a certain woman, whom we will call Hannah Smith, as a denizen of the eleventh ward. A day or two afterward a huge man entered the office with his brow clothed with thunder. In his hand he carried a fearful club, and at his side trotted a bulldog whom he evidently made desperate. With that quick appreciation of the situation which is available to the superior intelligence of educated men, the editor of this paper and the proprietors darted to the window, climbed outside, slid down the lightning rod, and went across the street to watch the bloody fray through a spy-glass. With the fearlessness of conscious innocence we sat still, merely inserting our legs in two sections of stove-pipe to guard against any apprehension of facts on the part of the bull-dog. The man with the club approached.

"Are you the editor?" he asked, spitting on his hand and grasping his club. We told him that the editor was out; that he had gone to the north pole with Captain Hall, and that he would not return before 1876, in time for the centennial celebration.

"Are you the proprietor," asked the man. We explained to him that we were not; that the proprietors were also out; that they had gone to South America for the purpose of investigating the curative properties of condurango, and they expected to remain there for several years.

"Well, whoever you are," exclaimed the warrior, "my name is Smith."

We told him we were glad, because, if there was one thing better than the possession of the name Smith, it was the privilege of knowing a man of that name. "But, Smith," we said, "why this battle array? It is absurd for a man to put on the panoply of war, and frisk into editors' sanctuaries, fumbling a club and accompanied by a disheartening bull-dog, simply because his name happens to be Smith."

He said he called in to burst the head of the man who had insulted his sister.

"It is impossible, Smith, that such a thing could have been done by any one in this office."

"Is, but it was, though; and her name was published, too! Miss Smith—Miss Banner Smith!"

"May we be permitted to inquire, Mr. Smith, what was the precise character of the affront offered to Hannah?"

"Well, you see," said Smith, "the black-guard said she was a denizen. And I want you to understand," exclaimed Smith, becoming excited, and brandishing his club in a wild manner over our heads, while the bull-dog advanced and commenced to sniff up and down our stove-pipe—"I want you to understand that she is a decent young woman, with a good character, and none of your denizens and such truck. The man who says she is a denizen is a black-guard and thief, and I'll smash him over the nose if I get a chance. They may say what they please about me, but the man who abuses my sister has got to suffer."

And Smith struck the table in a violent manner with his club, while the bull-dog put his fore legs up on the back of our chair.

We pacified Smith with a dictionary. We pointed out to that raging warrior that the Websterian definition of the word "denizen" gives such a person an unoffending character, and deprives the term of everything like reproach. Smith said he was satisfied, and he shook hands and kicked the bull-dog down stairs. The editor and proprietor, seeing that all was safe, immediately climbed the lightning rod and soon appeared at the window, where they were introduced to Smith, with the remark that they had returned from the North Pole and the climate of the condurango somewhat unexpectedly, in order to surprise their relations.

And now, we suppose Smith will be mad because we have told this story about him, and he will be coming down to interview us again, in war's magnificent stern array, with a fresh bull-dog. But it will be in vain. We have rented an office in the top of the shot-tower, and have planted torpedoes and spring guns all the way up the stairs. We warn this incendiary Smith to beware.

The Cholera Track—Its Line of March Last Year and up to This Time in 1871. (From the British Medical Journal.)

It is extremely important at this moment to trace the course of the Asiatic cholera during the last year, and to define its line of march up to this time. It is full of instruction, and not without elements of promise. Dr. Fauci, one of the most competent authorities, has analyzed the official documents, and his conclusions are worth knowing. It was in 1870 that the alarm was given at Taganrog on the Sea of Azov, and at Rostoff on the Don. Soon the principle cities of the Russian coast of the Black Sea were attacked, in the course of the month of August—Kerch, Berdiansk, Theodosia, Odessa, and even Poti, whence the disease propagated itself into the interior of the Caucasian provinces. As usual, the rapid propagation along the Russian coast coincided with the arrival, by steamship, of travelers starting from the infected points. There was no mistaking that it was an epidemic of Asiatic cholera coming from the interior of Russia with the movement produced by the transport of grain to the point of embarkation. This epidemic was otherwise remarkable for the slowness of its intensity—that is, for the small number of attacks. At the end of September it was everywhere on the decline, and subsequently died out along the coast. An important fact to be observed in regard to this epidemic is that thanks to the measures of quarantine enforced by the Ottoman sanitary authorities—the Turkish coast was completely saved from the disease, in spite of the numerous arrivals from the infected ports. Thus, from the 2d of August to the 21st of September not fewer than seven hundred ships—among which were several having cholera on board—were submitted to quarantine at the mouth of the Bosphorus. Whence did this epidemic come? The first idea which occurs is that this was simply an extension of the malady which reigned at the commencement of the year in the province of Central Russia, and was propagated to the south with the commercial movement above mentioned. At Constantinople another opinion is entertained. They have the conviction, based on documents the value of which is not yet ascertained by continental authorities, that this epidemic, and even that of the close of 1869, was due to Persian importation. The disease is declared to have broken out at Nijni Novgorod at the time of the fair, and with the arrival of the Persian merchants. This question is one which, as Dr. Fauci points out, is of great European importance. If, as the prevalent opinion runs, the actual epidemic be only a sequence of the importation of 1865, a recurrence such as is often observed in imperfectly exhausted foci of disease, this epidemic is distinguished from those which precede it in its course of invasion, and would tend to prove that cholera has found in Russia conditions favorable to its genesis and acclimation. If, on the other hand, the existing epidemic have for its origin a Persian importation, it falls then under the ordinary rule of epidemics of cholera due to a reimportation of the disease. This is a question which it behooves the sanitary administrators to solve.

Gentlemen's Autumn Fashions.

(From the New York Mail.)

Striped suits complete in dark neat patterns is the leading style for morning wear. Cost, a double-breasted reefing jacket, buttoning three buttons, medium bold lapels, shaped easy to figure, and one inch longer than last season. Waistcoat, single-breasted without a collar, or the coat is made a single-breasted Newmarket, buttoned one or two buttons at option, well cut away in front, long in the waist, skirt, good sized flaps on the hips, edges double stitched, and striped buttons to match the goods. Waistcoat double-breasted English melons, in black, blue, and Oxford are taking the place somewhat of the diagonals so long worn, and there are some new styles of the basket, honey-comb, and matted weaves in black and blue.

Diagonals, however, are still fashionable, and some very pretty new patterns are introduced. The Prince of Wales frock is the coat most favored for these goods, cut medium length, in the waist and rather longer in the skirt than formerly, buttoned on the hips; lapels, large, with grandiose, barometric silk, or bound with dupece or ribbon binding; side edges on the skirts, and fancy silk twist buttons.

Waistcoat double-breasted, lapels sewed on, binding and buttons to suit the coat. Stripes are the prevailing style for trousers, quiet patterns in dark colors being preferred. Some very handsome goods, with silk mixed stripes or check patterns, are among the best of the season. Trousers are now worn wider in the legs, still maintaining the full wide bottoms, and having a straight appearance. Fancy Berlin waistcoats in original patterns are among the novelties of the season, and are becoming very fashionable, but double-breasted, bound with fancy dupece binding, and silk twist buttons.

For fall overcoats the new goods are Venetians, Venetians, Cambridge elastic, and cover coating, the latter being an entirely new cloth, originally introduced by Mr. Poole, to wear over hunting costumes in "going to cover," but, becoming very fashionable in London, the same goods are now made up for general wear. The double-breasted Chesterfield is the most stylish shape, velvet collar, plain lapels, large seams, and deep cuffs on the sleeves. The single-breasted sack is now made without a fly, silk breast facings to the edge of the lapels, with buttonholes worked through. Pockets in front, with flaps to go in or out, and an outside breast pocket. Dress coats are rather longer and narrower, in the skirt than last style, lapels narrow at the top, slightly curved in shape, rolling to the waist seam, and facing with silk of new and peculiar patterns, side edges on the skirts, and two buttons and holes worked on the cuffs. A new ending, formed of a narrow zigzag braid laid on flat, is worn on the edge, and embroidered shapes are also fashionable. Dress trousers are worn very easy and straight to the leg.

A set of paper car-wheels, on one of the Pullman cars running to Jersey City, have run over 160,000 miles of track, and worn out entirely one set steel tires, which have been replaced. The ordinary wheels will only run 60,000 miles.

Which.—A question for any debating society to discuss—"If a man has a tiger by the tail, which would be the best for his personal safety—to hold on or to let go?"

The Henderson News says, that boat rides by moonlight still continue fashionable at that burg, though the moon doesn't rise until after midnight.

Each package contains one bottle filled with Sugar-coated Pills, and one vial filled with Medicated Powders, sufficient to make one-half pint of injection; and one Syringe.

THE TRI-WEEKLY YEOMAN.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1871.

We are requested by W. J. Chinn, Chairman of the Executive Democratic Committee of Franklin County, to say that there will be a meeting of the committee in this city on Saturday afternoon, at three o'clock, at the office of the county judge, to determine the manner and time of selecting delegates to the Judicial District Convention, to be held October 5th. A full attendance is desired.

THE DEFAULTING PAYMASTER.—It appears that the defaulting paymaster, Hodge, had but two bondsman, each for $20,000. There is considerable dispute between the Pay Department and Treasury as to the responsibility for the failure to discover irregularities of such magnitude, extending over so long a time. It has been claimed at the Treasury that the system of checks was so perfect that a fraud could not be perpetrated without the collusion of several parties in the different offices. As yet there is no evidence whatever to show that Hodge had any accomplices, and the result is that the officials are turning their attention to the checks and balances in use, with a view of ascertaining what additional returns are needed from disbursing officers and those they transact business with, to prevent such oversights in the future.

LEXINGTON FAIR.—EXTRA TRAINS AND HALF FARE.—There will be a special train run from Frankfort to Lexington and return during the days of the Lexington fair, commencing Wednesday, September 20th. Trains will leave Frankfort at 8 A. M., and arrive in Lexington at 9:30. Leave Lexington at 5 P. M., and arrive in Frankfort at 6:30 P. M. Half fare tickets will be sold during the fair.

Frankfort Chapter, No. 3. will meet this evening, at 7 1/2 o'clock, for the election of officers.

LONGFELLOW.—This noted race horse, says the Lexington Press, stopped for an hour on Saturday evening in front of Milward's store, on Main street. A crowd soon collected to see the wonder of the racing world, and as many as two hundred people were crowded around with wondering gaze before the wagon train moved on. It was rumored that he will go East and run in a short time. Mr. Harper will never be contented, so he says, until he recovers what by negligence he lost there, and we believe he can and will easily do it.

DEATH OF A VETERAN.—We regret to learn of the death of that old veteran whom every body in this region knew, Uncle Joe Shawhan, of Harrison. He was ninety years old, we believe, on the 12th inst., and was yet hale and hearty when his death was caused by being thrown from his horse. He was an old soldier of the war of 1812, had repeatedly represented his county in the Legislature, and had amassed a large property by industry and frugality. His son, Major John Shawhan, commanded a company during the Mexican war, and was killed during the late war in the Confederate army.

We learn that on Friday night, a body of men, thirty or forty in number, were roaming about the neighborhood of Bridgeport, and visited the houses of several colored tenants upon the Russell farm. From one of them they took a gun, and in two instances took small sums of money. We have heard of no deeds of blood committed by them, and it is probable that they were only in search of plunder, or did not meet with the resistance necessary to all murder to robbery. It is high time that such thieves were made to know that they cannot commit such acts with impunity.

NEW PAPER.—We learn that Capt. James M. Hines, formerly editor of the Bowling Green Democrat, and late Sergeant at Arms of the House of Representatives, proposes to establish a new Democratic weekly paper at Bowling Green shortly. The rapid increase in the population of that thriving city offers a good inducement for another paper, and we know of no one who is better qualified for the successful establishment of a new paper there than Capt. Hines.

Lieut. Chapman Todd, U. S. Navy, agreeably surprised his friends here by his arrival, a day or two since, on a brief visit. He has been on duty on the Severn, the flagship of Admiral Lee, in command of the Gulf Squadron, which lately arrived in Hampton Roads for the purpose of taking part in the reception of the Grand Duke Alexis of Russia, whose arrival is expected in New York about the 1st of October.

We were glad to meet in the city yesterday our friend and a former resident of this city, William D. Acton, who now resides near Augusta, Ga. Mr. Acton, like thousands of others, left his home in 1862, and cast his fortunes with the South. This is his first visit to his "Old Kentucky Home," since his departure with Bragg's army. He is looking remarkably well, and we are glad to learn is successful in planting.

SHOT.—A negro named Joe Love was shot by another negro, Benny Walker, at a negro saloon kept by Jesse Hocker, on High street, about seven o'clock Sunday night. The ball entered the left side, and ranged around towards the back. The wound is not considered serious. Walker was showing the pistol to Love, when it was discharged by accident. Walker gave himself up to Squire Gwin, and will have an examining trial this morning.

We are indebted to our townsman, Mr. Richard Long, for a copy of the Panama Star and Herald of a late date, sent him by his brother, Hon. Owen M. Long, U. S. Consul at Panama. He has also shown us a very beautiful assortment of sea shells, peculiar to that latitude, received at the same time.

Lost.—On the 12th inst., between the Capital and Southern Hotels, a coral and gold breast-pin. The finder will please leave it at the Yeoman office, and be suitably rewarded.

Sept. 16-31.

THE HARPER TRAGEDY.—THAT DREAM.—On Saturday, while coming from Lexington, we met with Mr. Wallace Harper, whose wife was said to have had that remarkable dream on the Saturday night preceding the Harper tragedy, in which she saw the murderer and the murderers. In a conversation with him he informed us that it was not his wife, but his sister, who had the dream, and that it occurred on Sunday night, the same on which the tragedy was enacted. He added that the parties seen in her dream were a stout man with side whiskers and a young man. At first she was inclined to think they were negroes, but her latest impressions were that they were white men.

We are not of those who attach any importance to dreams except as sometimes showing singular coincidences, but having given currency to the first report, regard it only right to give these modifications as communicated from the reliable source, especially as there has been a disposition to place more stress on the incident than it deserved, and to cast suspicion where it might be unjust.

In this connection we will state that no new developments have occurred tending to solve this most mysterious affair. The five negroes in custody upon suspicion of complicity in the murder had an examination in Versailles on Friday, and were all discharged except one, named Will Pryor, the youngest one, who was in the habit of making fires in the house, and was found in the room of Miss Betsy when the murder was discovered. Nothing further, however, was elicited to indicate his guilt, but he was held over to await further developments. A good many rumors are constantly springing up, but all such should be received with distrust. There was one on Saturday to the effect that one of the negroes had confessed, but there was of course no truth in it. Another found its way to the papers that the pocket-book of Jacob Harper had been found, but this also was an error. The one in question belonged to a neighbor, who had dropped it in passing from the house to the stable a short time before it was picked up. Detective Clint Butts is still in the neighborhood working up the case, but as he rightly keeps reticent, it is not known whether he has found any clue to aid him in unraveling the mystery.

Crutcher, the famous hatter on Main street, has been dealing the most superb hats to the citizens of Frankfort and the balance of the world, for years. His fall campaign is now begun. Advance and meet him one and all.

The county court of Mason county have voted unanimously to submit to a vote of the people of the county the question of subscribing $400,000 to the Kentucky and Eastern Railroad—the vote to be taken on the 7th of October.

The Carrollton Democrat announces Hon. R. W. Masterson, of Carroll, as a candidate for circuit judge. The names of Judge H. Cox and Judge W. M. Fisher were also proposed in the same connection, but both declined to permit them to be used against that of Judge Masterson.

J. J. Hickman, G. W. C. T., presented Ingleside Lodge, I. O. G. T., on Thursday night, with a handsome silver service as a token of his esteem for the banner Lodge of the world. So says the Maysville Republican.

PERSONAL.—Judge C. G. Wintersmith, of Elizabethtown; Dr. N. Green, Dr. E. D. Standford, and Col. R. W. Wooley, of Louisville, were registered at the Capital hotel last night.

It will be seen by posters in various parts of the city, that the city council have adopted stringent measures to prevent the waste of water, supplied by the water-works.

ANOTHER CONTESTED ELECTION.—The Louisville Commercial of Saturday says: "By a private letter from Marion, Crittenden county, Ky., we learn that the seat of Mr. S. N. Wood, elected to the Legislature from that county, will be contested. Mr. S. Hodge, his unsuccessful opponent, has served a regular notice on him to that effect."

STATE FAIRS.—The following county fairs commence to-day: Warren county, at Bowling Green; Boyd county, Ashland; Bracken county, Germantown; North Kentucky, Florence, Boone county; Boyle county, Danville.

The third fair of the Colored Agricultural and Mechanical Association of Fayette and other counties will be held near Lexington, beginning Tuesday, September 26th, and continuing four days.

Gen. G. B. Crittenden, State Librarian, will receive proposals to keep in repair the State House roof. See notice to contractors elsewhere.

PLENTY.—By reference to their advertisement in another column of the Yeoman it will be seen that Macklin & Brawner are well supplied with coal.

We had the pleasure yesterday of a call from Hon. C. D. Foote, member elect to the Legislature from Covington; Judge W. W. Ireland, and Judge C. H. Lee, of Pendleton, who are attending the Court of Appeals.

The Valley Mills of this city commenced making flour yesterday.

JOCKEY CLUB RULES.—The Jockey Club of the Kentucky Association have adopted the following rules in regard to starting horses on the course:

The riders alone shall have control of the horses in starting.
No joggling of horses can be had after the signal to start is given, and after each heat the horses shall be taken to the cooling grounds to be sponged off. In more concise words, no horse shall be sponged on the quarter-stretch.

The editor of the Owensboro Shield was agreeably surprised the other day to meet a brother whom he had not seen for twenty years. He is the only one left, out of nine, and has nine children, the two youngest being twins a few months old. Josh says he is looking as young as he can afford under all the circumstances.

The Citizens' Guards and Ashland Rifles of Lexington, and Valley Rifles of this place, have been organized into a battalion, to be known as the Blue Grass Battalion, and have elected J. W. Hunt Reynolds, of this city, major.

THE TURF.—The great race between Goldsmith Maid and Lucy, which took place at Minneapolis, Minn., on Saturday, resulted in a victory for the Maid, the queen of the turf, in three straight heats. Time 2:22 3/4, 2:17 1/2, and 2:21.

MATRIMONIAL.—Mr. Lem. R. Harris, former editor of the Carrollton Democrat, was married in Mound City, Ill., on the morning of the 3d inst. to Miss Lizzie De Barth, formerly of Louisville.

The yellow fever is gradually dying out at Charleston, South Carolina. Only three deaths occurred in the last three days.

The weather has been pleasant and autumn like for the last two days, with the indications of rain late yesterday afternoon.

The late rains have raised the river at this point about five feet. It is still rising slowly.

The Shelby Sentinel was at the great inconvenience of removing its press and fixtures. Its temper is not soured, and many promises are to be fulfilled.

MY BEDFELLOW.

Into a country town, and during court week, I once rode on horseback at the end of a weary day, passed in a continuous mad hole, studded with stumps and ornamented with logs, that a benighted country called a road. Night had already closed in, and I was guided to a hotel by a thousand and one boys of the place, and the noise issuing from the bar-room no less disagreeable. I found the landlord shut up in a corner pen, dealing out liquid insanity to his customers. To my request for a supper and a bed, he responded that I could eat my fill, but there was not a bed unengaged or unoccupied in the house. I persisted until the wretch informed me that there was a "feller" in number six occupying a double bed, and I could "roll in there" if so minded.

It was dismal, but my only hope; so after the evening indigestion I climbed the rough stairs to number six. I was told by the landlord to walk in without knocking, and did so.

It was a cheerless room, without carpet upon the floor, or curtains to shut out the black night of the windows that seemed to stare blindly in on one, and wink as the candle flared in the wind. I found my companion measuring off his dreams by snore, and undressing "rolled in," as the landlord had suggested. My snore turned over with something like a growl and a grunt, as I crept to his side.

Tired as I was, I could not sleep. The bed tickled me as if it was stuffed with grasshoppers, and the pillows were of the sort to slip up one's nose in the night, and be sneezed out sometime during the day. Besides this my bedfellow snored abominably. It sounded like a giant trying to blow "Old Hundred" through a tin horn, without knowing exactly how.

I bore this indignity as long as I could, and at last gave my friend a dig in the ribs, exclaiming at the same time:

"I say, what is it?" he asked, in a confused way.

"I am sorry to disturb you, but I think it my duty to inform you that I walk in my sleep."

"Well, walk!"

"My Christian friend, I am well aware that this is a free country, and if a man wishes to walk in his sleep there is no constitutional provision to prevent him. But I wish to remark that if I do walk you had better not interfere with me."

"Oh! walk; I won't say a word about it."

"Well, don't. When addressed or interfered with, I am apt to get furious. I nearly brained a poor man the other night with a dog-iron."

"The deuce you did,"

"Yes, I did."

"Well, that's rather disagreeable. A fellow might, under an impulse, blurt out something to you."

"Better not."

"No, I should think not."

A long pause followed this. At last the now wide-awake looked abruptly:

"Did you notice my plug hat on the floor?"

"I believe I did."

"If you walk, I'd rather you wouldn't step in it."

"I'll bear that in mind."

After another pause he again asked:

"Did you notice that door on the left?"

"I saw one."

"Well, if you walk, I'd advise you not to go out there. It opens on a porch, only the porch hasn't been built, and its twenty feet down into the stable yard."

"I don't believe I shall walk out of that door?"

"Don't think I would if I walked much."

I supposed my inquisitive friend was dropping into a sleep, when he broke out:

"Say, did you really brain a man with a dog-iron?"

"I tried pretty hard."

Then came a silence that was not broken. After a little while, I heard my bedfellow creeping softly from the other side of the bed. I could hear him feeling about for his hat and clothes. Then I had the satisfaction that the door had closed softly on my retreating tormentor, I rolled over and slept the sleep of innocence.

The next morning on descending to breakfast, I found an old friend seated at the table. We had not met for years. After a cordial greeting, I said:

"Are you stopping here?"

"I have been trying; but I'm nearly dead. I slept on a bench in the bar room, amid a lot of drunken brutes, who sang Bingo for wagers of drink all night."

"Could you get no bed?"

"Yes, I had a double bed to myself, when that stupid landlord sent up a crazy fellow, who walked in his sleep and brained people with a dog-iron."

"Good heavens, Gillespie, was that you?"

"And hang you, Weston, you don't mean to say that you served me that trick?"

It was a case that called for diplomatic explanation.—Galaxy.

Coleridge's Humor.

"I have heard Coleridge say," says Mr. J. C. Young, in his "Memoir of Charles Mayne Young," "more than once, that no mind was thoroughly organized that was deficient in the sense of humor, yet I hardly ever saw any great exhibition of it in him. The only instance I can recall, in which he said anything calculated to elicit a smile during the two or three weeks I was with him, was when he, Wordsworth and I, were floating down the Rhine together in a boat we had hired conjointly. The day was remarkably sultry; we had all three taken a considerable walk before dinner; and what, with fatigue, heat, and exhaustion consequent on gerrily, Coleridge complained grievously of thirst. When he heard there was no house near at hand, and saw a leather flask thrown over my shoulder, he asked me what it contained. On my telling him it was Hochelheim, he shook his head, and told me he would as soon take vinegar. After a while, however, finding thirst increasing, he exclaimed, 'I fear I must conquer my dislike—eat humble pie, and beg for a draught.' He had no sooner finished his mouth with the obnoxious fluid than he spit out, and vented his disgust in the following impromptu:

"In Spain, that land of monks and apes,
The thing called wine doth come from grapes;
But on the noble river Rhine,
The thing called grapes doth come from wine."

"Every little frog is great in his own bog."

Jefferson's Ten Rules of Life.

1. Never put off until to-morrow what you can do to-day.
2. Never trouble others with what you can do yourself.
3. Never spend money before you have it.
4. Never buy what you do not want because it is cheap.
5. Pride costs more than hunger, thirst and cold.
6. We never repent of having eaten too little.
7. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.
8. How much pain have those evils cost us which never happened.
9. Take things always by their smooth handle.
10. When angry count ten before you speak; if very angry, count one hundred.

An Illinois constable made a return on the back of a paper thus: "I executed this subpoena by trying to read it to John Mack, but he was driving cattle on horseback, and run faster than I could, and kept up such a holler! I don't know whether he heard or not. This is the best I could do, and don't know whether the subpoena is served according to law or not."

"Now, my boy," said a school director, "if I had a mince pie, and should give two-twelfths of it to John, two-twelfths to Isaac, two-twelfths to Harry, and should take half the pie myself, what would there be left? Speak up loud, so that people can hear." "The plate," shouted the boy.

FOR SALE.
A LARGE & SPLENDID FARM, AND EXTENSIVE AND VARIOUS PERSONAL PROPERTY.

HEALTH REQUIRING ME TO WINTER in Florida, I will sell the Farm on which I reside, containing over seven hundred and eighty acres, situate in Franklin and Woodford Counties, Ky., five miles from Frankfort, on the Railroad to Lexington, and the Turnpike to Versailles, and I can confidently say there is no better farm in Kentucky, all things considered.
The Location is beautiful, convenient, and healthy.
The Buildings are elegant, spacious, substantial, and for all appropriate purposes; the Farm being supplied with three other comfortable dwellings and suitable buildings, besides the principal residence.
The Soil was naturally good, and has been kept in a high state of fertility, and is now ready to yield the heaviest crops of hemp, grains, and grasses.
The Water is of all kinds, abundant, and convenient for domestic, stock, and ornamental uses.
The Fencing is of durable materials of various kinds, is in good condition, with timber ample for future supply.
Society is excellent; and religious, educational, and social conveniences abundant and varied.
A Division of the Farm into four parts can be judiciously effected, so that each will have appropriate dwelling and other buildings; and I will sell separately that part on the north side of the railroad, having superior soil, water, timber, roads, and two sets of buildings, all in good condition.
The Terms will be made easy, after a cash payment of one half of the purchase money at the time of giving possession in October next. Purchasers are invited to inspect the premises in person, or apply by mail for full description.

An Auction Sale will be held on the premises on the 5th of September next, consisting of Durham Cattle, "Improved Kentucky" Sheep, Cashmere Goats, Fattening Hogs, Farm and Saddle Horses, Crops on hand, and implements of all kinds, which will be daily advertised.
